NOTES

USSR: Rumors are circulating in Moscow that further high-level personnel shifts will be announced later this week. Party presidium members Polyansky and Shelepin are said to be slated for promotions in the governmental hierarchy and Malinovsky will allegedly be removed as defense minister. Moscow rumors have been generally more accurate since Khrushchev's ouster than before. At the provincial level, one key change was announced on 7 December when the party boss of Kazakhstan was deposed, rescinding what was apparently a personal Khrushchev appointment. [REDACTED]

Sudan: Race riots between negroid southerners and Arab Sudanese in Khartoum on 6 and 7 December have left at least fourteen dead and hundreds injured. Government statements now attribute the rioting to "seditious elements" which misled the country's "primitive citizens." The minor role assigned the army in quelling the riots may reflect continued government uncertainty over present army loyalties. [REDACTED]

United Nations: There is a strong feeling within the Afro-Asian group at the UN that the only way to solve the financial crisis is to ignore Article 19 of the Charter while work continues on a still vague plan for voluntary contributions. According to a ranking Nigerian delegate, the Afro-Asians are becoming impatient with the present nonvoting arrangements and want the General Assembly to proceed with its normal business. Afro-Asian pressures could bring the Article 19 issue to a head because any member may at any time demand a vote be taken.
